About Me

My name is Brooke. I am 21 and I live in Wisconsin. I am currently going to a college bootcamp for web development at devCodeCamp. I've been learning things about computers since I was 10. I started to get interested in how the computer functions and how to fix them if I ran into any issues during that time. As I got older, I started learning more in depth things about the computer, hardware fixing, software fixing, what the registry key files mean, how to use certain command prompt functions, using a virtual machine to test viruses and look at what they do behind the scenes on a computer, etc. I've always wanted to use my knowledge of computers whether if it was software or hardware related, or even coding like I am now.

Other things about me: I can speak conversational level Japanese and write in Japanese. I have 4 cats. I am very interested in playing computer games.
